NOTICE.

The public is bereby warned that plows made and sold by the Vulcan Plow Co., Evansville, Indiana, having a ribbed mold-board are an infringement of a patent granted to me by the United States. Under the patent law the user, the seller and the maker are alike liable in the courts for the infringement of a patent. The letter of the Vulcan Plow Company addressed to me and published in our nowshapers is the usual answer of patent pirates, and is seldom proved. The statement of law in the letter is false and could not have been made by any reputable patent lawyer or any well informed person.
